

The following honors and awards are solicited during the spring of each academic year.
Formal nominations are sent out from the Senior Associate Dean of Faculty's office.

Emory Williams Teaching Award

These awards are made annually in each of the three divisions and are presented at Commencement in May. Winners are selected by a committee of previous award winners.

To begin the selection process, we invite nominations for these prestigious awards from any member of the Emory College faculty. We especially encourage joint nominations and nominations from departments and programs.

We will contact all of the nominees and their department chairs to notify them of the nomination. If nominees wish to be considered for this award, we will ask them to provide a current C.V., a two-page teaching statement, a recent three-year run of the summaries of course evaluations for all College courses, and any other supplemental information related to teaching that they wish the selection committee to consider.
Nominations that are not chosen for the award this year will be held and reconsidered for three years.

Cuttino Award

This award is named in honor of the late George Peddy Cuttino, a member of our history department from 1952 to 1984, who was known among several generations of Emory students not only as a teacher, but also as a guide and counselor beyond the classroom. The successful recipient of this prestigious award should exhibit a similar record of exceptional mentoring of students. We invite nominations from any member of the Emory College faculty. Nominations that are not chosen for the award this year will be held and reconsidered for three years.

Distinguished Teaching Professorship

In 1990 Emory won a $300,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities to help endow two distinguished teaching professorships, which would be filled by appointments in alternate years to staggered four-year terms. Both of these professorships are now fully funded, thanks to generous friends of the College. One professorship is Arthur Blank/NEH Professorship with the second being Masse-Martin/NEH Professorship. Appointees receive annual salary supplements of $15,000, along with an annual allowance of $5,000 to provide programming support related to teaching and pedagogy, as well as to support research and travel. Appointees are expected to provide a reasonable amount of teaching leadership, while personally teaching normal course loads including at least one introductory level course each year.

Interested faculty members may apply directly, or you may wish to nominate a colleague. Any tenured person in a humanities discipline is eligible, as is any social scientist whose work is clearly humanistic in its concerns.

Winship Awards for Senior Lecturers

The Winship Awards, typically one or two per academic year, will provide a one semester leave (i.e. a release from both teaching and service) and an extra $1,500 budget for professional expenses during the year of the award. (This amount will be in addition to each winner's standard annual allotment from departments for professional expenses). Winners of the Winship Awards for Senior Lecturers may take their leaves during either semester of the following academic year. During this leave, the Winship award winners will pursue activities described in written proposals that accompany their applications. These activities should foster their professional development related to their teaching. Projects may include (but are not confined to) engaging in research that has a direct impact on the applicant's teaching; producing textbooks, laboratory handbooks, or other pedagogical tools; receiving specialized training either locally or elsewhere; carrying out research on outcomes of courses or measures of learning; mounting an exhibition, writing a script, or putting on a performance; establishing community initiatives and partnerships; or developing Blackboard websites for courses.
