Emory College of Arts and Sciences is pleased to announce a competition for the Award for Academic Advising. This award seeks to recognize faculty who have achieved excellence in advising and mentoring Emory College students, whether at the pre-major level or students within a particular academic major.

We invite any Emory College student to nominate faculty for this award. Nominees must be full-time Emory College faculty. Your nominee might be someone who was your pre-major advisor, your major advisor, a faculty member who unofficially served as an advisor, or your advisor for an honors thesis or special project. We will solicit further information about the nominees from their department chairs. The winner will be recognized at Commencement and receive a reward for his or her research account.

To nominate a member of the faculty, please send a letter to the email address below by February 17, 2015. In your letter, describe how the advising of the nominee has made a difference in your undergraduate career. You are welcome to solicit additional letters from other students with whom the nominee has worked.

Please send nominations or questions to Dr. Jason Ciejka, Assistant Dean in the Office for Undergraduate Education (jciejka@emory.edu). A nomination should include the following:

1. A description of the circumstances in which this faculty member advised you—as a major adviser, a PACE adviser, an instructor who provided more general advice to you, an honors thesis adviser or research mentor, or another advising relationship.

2. Explain what made this advisor stand out for you. In what way was this advising relationship extraordinary or especially deserving of recognition? Why was the advice you received important to you and how did it make a difference to your undergraduate experience or plans for the future?
