BEST "YOU ALREADY HAVE IT BUT YOU'RE NOT USING IT" WHITEBOARD

Zoom's Annotate Tool

Link: zoom.com

Description: The Zoom annotation feature allows the host and/or all meeting participants to annotate directly onto a shared screen (document, webpage, image, etc.) or whiteboard.

Pros:

- You're already using Zoom
- Zoom is supported by Emory (click here for more information on Emory's zoom support services)
- No need to upload your slides or toggle between your slides and your whiteboard

Cons:

- This is an "advanced feature" within Zoom
- Students must be given permission to annotate

Possible Uses:

- Highlighting important information in your slides
- Clarifying or correcting student assignments during live sessions
- Allowing students to annotate their screens in breakout rooms

Cost: FREE to instructors and students

BEST "OH SHOOT, I FOUND MYSELF IN OFFICE HOURS WITH A VISUAL LEARNER" WHITEBOARD

AWWboard

Link: awwboard.com

Description: AWW App is an online Whiteboard for realtime visual collaboration. AWW stands for A Web Whiteboard, and it's exactly that - it's a touch-friendly online whiteboard app that makes drawing, collaboration and sharing easy. It makes using an online whiteboard as easy as "start drawing."

Pros:

- No need to pay for anything or keep track of your login ID
- Go to awwboard.com and start drawing
- Boards and notes can easily be shared when you're finished

Cons:

- The free version is very simple

Possible Uses: Go ahead and bookmark this link in your browser. You don't need to pay for anything or even login. It's the perfect tool for quickly writing notes or diagramming structures for your students.

Cost: Free for basic tools and sharing, $10/month buys you unlimited participants and unlimited premium boards
